Authorities Label Mayor Koesel Death As Suicide

PURCHASER OF DEATH WEAPON IS IDENTIFIED

The self-styled "murder" of Mayor Fred Koesel of Anaheim last November was branded a suicide today by Los Angeles sheriff's officers after it was discovered that it was Koesel who purchased the gun in Long Beach the day before he was shot in the canyon.

The case was declared closed today with the startling announcement that Koesel had not been held up and robbed, as he steadfastly claimed until his death. Authorities in Orange and Los Angeles counties had prosecuted a vigorous search for assassins after Koesel, mortally wounded, staggered into his physician's home in Anaheim last November 28, with a story of being held up and robbed of $35 by bandits who then shot him.

The missing gun was found on June 13 by a weed cutter in the canyon near the scene of the shooting and turned over to Frank Gompert, ballistic expert in Los Angeles. He determined that the bullet extracted from Koesel's body was fired by the Iver-Johnson gun picked up in the canyon and search was immediately opened to discover the owner of the weapon.

Koesel bought the death gun at the California Second Hand store, 428 Locust street, Long Beach, using an assumed name of "John Eiler." Gompert announced today. Manuev Weinstein, proprietor of the store, positively identified the Anaheim official as the purchaser and established the connecting link that confirmed the suicide theory, Gompert said.

Although nothing has been said officially, it was long believed that Koesel killed himself. A peculiar circumstance of the shooting was that the fatal bullet pierced a vest pocket on the inside but there was no hole on the outside, indicating that the gun was placed in the pocket and fired.

Suppositions on the crime are to the effect that Koesel shot himself, threw the gun as far as possible from the road and then drove to Anaheim. When the weedcutter located the weapon several yards from the side of the road, one bullet had been fired.

Only one in every 145 persons convicted for homicide suffers this death penalty, according to estimates.

$4000 DAMAGE DONE BY FIRE AT RANCH HOME

Damage estimated at $4000 was caused this morning about 9:30 a. m. when a fire swept through the spacious home of Wilbur Barr on Newport boulevard between Lemon and Panorama Heights.

Barr had driven to the ranch to do some ranch work and had parked his car in the garage. No one else was home at the time the blaze started and the flames had made great headway before being discovered. Neighbors broke into all the furniture and personal belongings of the family before fire equipment arrived.

Firemen from Tustin and the Orange answered the call and soon extinguished the fire using water from a nearby reservoir. The middle section of the house, including a large living room, and an adjoining garage, were burned to the ground but the end wings were only slightly damaged by smoke and water. Barr's expensive automobile was destroyed.

It is expected that the well-known Santa Ana will rebuild the home in the near future. He is the son of O. H. Barr, owner of the Barr Lumber company of this city.

Mrs. Anna Richards was given a decree of divorce when she told Judge Allen that her husband, G. Newton Richards, had deserted her June 6, 1932. The Richards were married June 6, 1926.

Bravo, Del Villar and Estrada, all asked probation and will be given a hearing on their applications July 7.

Two 100-miles-an-hour Trains to Speed Across West

A speed of 120 miles an hour is claimed for it. Its interior will be much like the one above.

Cupid's Darts Set New Record Here

Showing utter belief in President Roosevelt's promise of a "new deal," 431 couples went to the altar in Orange county during June. Besides getting married these 431 couples set a post-depression record for this county according to County Clerk J. M. Backs.

The month ending yesterday marked the greatest number of marriage licenses issued since the depression became a topic for conversation. In June, 1929, there were but 187 licenses issued. In 1930 there were 366 couples who believed President Hoover when he said that prosperity was just around the corner. There were 411 couples who believed that it was just around the corner in June, 1931, and secured licenses. Last year there were only 399 couples willing to take a chance, what with reduced incomes and everything.

Last month, according to Backs, there were 301 licenses issued. To date this year there have been 1413 licenses issued.

W. C. T. U. EXECUTIVE BOARD PLEDGES WARFARE ON LIQUOR; THANK WORKERS IN CAMPAIGN

Repledging themselves to continued and lifelong warfare against the liquor traffic, and thanking workers in the recent campaign, members of the Orange County W. C. T. U. executive board met yesterday in the Buena Park First Congregational church.

The following resolutions were adopted by the group: "Be it resolved by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Orange county, assembled in quarterly executive in Buena Park; that we do solemnly reavow our lasting hatred of the liquor traffic and pledge our continued and lifelong warfare against it. So long as mothers see their sons and daughters fall victims to strong drink; so long will their hands and voices be raised in protest against the cruel and ruthless monster, the strong drink traffic."

Resolved: "That we do most heartily commend J. F. Burke for his generous assistance in the recent campaign; for the unstinted space he gave to temperance in his paper; for his talks both by radio and otherwise. Also we would give great credit to the following named preachers for faithful, efficient and unremitting service during the campaign: the Rev. Grover Ralston, the Rev. C. D. Hicks, Dr. George A. Warner; and to Mrs. Pearl Kendall Hess and also to all persons who gave of their time in their local communities."

"Buy dry" was adopted as a slogan of the group.

During the meeting, a telegram bearing the words, "Be not weary in well doing," was sent to the national W. C. T. U. convention now in session in Milwaukee. Mrs. Anna Garretson was sponsor of the message.

Mrs. Cora Hale, president, was in charge of the meeting, and the Rev. Le Rue C. Watson led devotionals.

The next quarterly meeting of the executive board is to be held in the executive board in September.

The ceremony was read by the Rev. Harry Branton of the Prescott Methodist church, after which the couple traveled to the Grand Canyon.

The couple will make their home on the Heisler estate at 201 Cliff drive. The romance started in Riverside where Mr. Heisler spends much of his time on his estate there.

Says Man Accused In Traffic Death Not Given Badge

San Clemente has never issued a police badge to Joseph Miller, 36, held in Los Angeles on suspicion of manslaughter, it was declared today by Thomas F. Murphine Jr., chief of police, following reports from Los Angeles that Miller claimed a police badge in his possession was given him by the chief at San Clemente.

Witnesses claimed that a car driven by Miller crashed into the machine of Neil Hathaway, insurance company executive, while traveling 60 miles an hour, Hathaway being killed.

Miller carried a gun and had a police siren on his car, it was said. Murphine said that records do not show the name of Miller and that he has issued but one badge since he took office last month, and that to a night officer. Murphine pointed out that it would be an easy matter for a person to have a police badge manufactured.

BEVERLY HILLS, July 1. (To the Editor of The Register:) With all the rest of us using silver, copper, buttons, pins, checkers, wampum and watermelons for money, France can't see any advantage in using real money, so they are liable to dive off the gold any day.

Europe is disgusted with America because she won't say exactly what her dollar is worth. We say our dollar is like a wife, they are worth whatever they are worth to you. They may go to 10 cents abroad, but they are still worth a dollar to us.

JAIL MOTORIST ON RECKLESS DRIVING COUNT

John D. Morris, 2108 Kilson drive, Santa Ana, is lying unconscious at the point of death in St. Joseph's hospital, seven others were injured and one man is being held in the county jail on reckless driving charges as the result of five automobile wrecks yesterday afternoon and evening in southern Orange county.

Paul L. Farmer, 34, welder, living at 171 Third street, Uplands, driver of the car that collided with the machine driven by Morris, at Chapman and Tustin avenues in Orange, was booked at the county jail last night on suspicion of manslaughter but was arraigned before Judge A. C. Swayze of Orange this morning and charged with reckless driving, pending the recovery of Morris. Bond was fixed at $1000.

Hazel Miller, 18, 218 East California boulevard, Ontario, and William E. Jenkins, 33, 690 East Third street, Uplands, were taken to the Orange county hospital with Morris after the wreck but were released after being given first aid treatment. They suffered lacerations and bruises and were taken home.

Hurled From Car

Morris was thrown through the windshield of his automobile from the impact of the crash and was still unconscious at a late hour today. He was removed to St. Joseph's hospital at 6:30 p. m. and is given a slight chance for recovery. He suffered a basal skull fracture, deep lacerations on the head and shoulders and severe cuts and bruises.

Miss Ruth French, Princeton street, Ontario, riding with Farmer, Jenkins and Miss Miller, was uninjured.

Reports of the accident indicated that Morris was driving west on Chapman avenue and Farmer was proceeding south on Tustin avenue. The machines collided in the center of the intersection and were badly damaged. Chief of Police B. F. Richards and Officer Pete Winslow were on the scene of the wreck within a few minutes and arrested Farmer.

T. P. Hunter, 23, North Raymond street, Fullerton, was slightly hurt at 7 o'clock last night when the car he was driving was struck by a machine driven by Mrs. H. J. Thompson, R. D. No. 1, Anaheim, on Brookhurst avenue about two miles west of Anaheim.

Hunter, approaching the intersection at Broadway street, apparently did not see the Thompson car approaching. He attempted to miss her automobile by speeding up at the corner but the cars hit and overturned his automobile, reports indicated.

Two Crashes in Santa Ana No one was seriously hurt in two traffic accidents last night in Santa Ana but the automobile of William McGimpey, 131 Elsa drive, Fullerton, was badly damaged when it turned over on North Flower street.

McGimpey, swerving to dodge a hole in the pavement, had the steering mechanism on his car lock and turn the machine over. He was taken home by passing motorists and suffered only slight cuts and bruises. The accident happened between Washington and Fifteenth streets on Flower.

Cars driven by Lawrence Bieger, 725 South Parton street, and James Fleisher, 833 1-2 Orange Grove place, South Pasadena, collided last night near the Bieger home on Parton street. Fleisher was driving a light delivery truck and ran into the Belger machine when the Santa Ana man turned into a driveway. It is reported. The cars were not badly damaged and the men escaped with light bruises and scratches.

T. Kitada, 40, Stanton, was hurt at 8:30 o'clock last night when he walked into the side of a car driven by Orlando Thompson, 25, R. D. 2, Box 90, Anaheim, as Thompson made a left hand turn into Main street from Huntington Beach boulevard in Stanton. ORDERS STILL OPERATOR TO LEAVE COUNTY Repeal by the legislature of the state law making it a felony to possess a still, resulted yesterday in the release from custody of Henry Bowling, 41, Costa Mesa plumber.

Bowling was granted three years probation by Superior Judge James L. Allen, when he appeared on the charge. As a term of probation Bowling must move his family from Orange county within 10 days and remain away.

Bowling appeared in court yesterday with his attorney D. G. Wetlin and pleaded guilty to the charge and requested probation. The probation matter was taken up immediately and upon presentation of a telegram signed by an assistant secretary to Gov. James Rolph, the probation order was made.

The telegram received in reply to one sent the governor by Wetlin was to the effect that Assembly Bill 175, repealing the measure making still possession a felony had been approved by the legislature and signed by the governor. A section of the repealing act was quoted declaring that it was the intention of the legislature, through adoption of the act which becomes effective in August, to have adoption of the act serve as a bar to prosecution of any person now under indictment or awaiting trial on a charge of possessing a still.

Bowling was arrested June 8, by sheriff's deputies when they confiscated a 100-gallon double still, 365 gallons of mash and a quantity of liquor and alcohol. Bowling is said to have admitted operating the still at his home for several months. He had built the still himself and was washing it when the officers arrived.

In answer to a lady's letter

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

A lady writes to say that she does not understand why an 8-cylinder car does not cost more to run than a car with fewer cylinders. She refers to my statement that our Ford V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gas than any car we have made.

The use of 8-cylinders does not mean the addition of two or four extra fuel consumers. It is not, for example, a 4-cylinder engine multiplied by two. Our 8-cylinder engine takes the fuel supply of an ordinary 4-cylinder engine and divides it eight ways. And why?

By reducing four larger explosions into eight smaller ones, we get engine smoothness and quietness. Eight-cylinders indicate the way the gas is used, not the amount. It is just the difference between going upstairs in four long jumps or in eight ordinary steps.

Two things use up gas—bad engine design and useless car weight. Besides having an engine that gets a high percentage of power out of the fuel, the Ford V-8 has a light, strong body and chassis so that no power is wasted in moving excess weight.

The only extravagance about the new Ford V-8 engine is in the building of it. The extravagance is ours—the economy is yours.

The whole question of car economy needs clearing up. An economical car gives economy all round. Price, operation, upkeep, all play their part. If what you save on gas you lose elsewhere, that is not economy.

As to upkeep, our dealers say that in recent years the improved quality of Ford cars has cut down their repair business 50 per cent.

As to price with quality,—judge for yourself.

As to economy, here is the record of a stock car three weeks out of shop in Oklahoma:

On a run of 10,054 miles at the rate of 1,000 miles a day—the Ford V-8 gave 18.8 miles per gallon of gas. Not a drop of water was added to the radiator. The oil was changed once in 1,000 miles.

That should answer a lot of questions.

INSTALLATION CONDUCTED BY ORANGE LIONS

ORANGE, July 1.—Officers were installed at a dinner and dance given by the members of the Lions club at the American Legion clubhouse last night with Ivan Swann as the installing officer. Earle Phillips was installed as president, Gordon K. Richmond, first vice president, Alvin Drumm, third vice president; Martell Thompson, club twister; Ray Arguello, lion tamer, and Forest Talmadge, secretary.

Gordon K. Richmond was master of ceremonies and introduced Carl Orbach of the staff of KREG and for a number of years publicity director for numerous prominent motion picture celebrities. Orbach gave a brief history of the film industry from its inception in Hollywood 21 years ago to the present time.

Several companies had attempted to utilize California sunshine in making moving pictures previous to this time, the speaker said, but had returned to New York owing to the scarcity of actors, while today there are 100,000 actors too many in the film capital. D. W. Griffith had brought Henry B. Walthall, Mary Pickford and Owen Moore to California in 1910, the speaker said, returning east with them a short time later.

In 1912, Jesse Lasky, a discouraged vaudeville musician, joined forces with his brother-in-law, Samuel Goldfish, a glove salesman, to make "The Squaw Man," with Dustin Farnum playing the lead. Taking the company to Flagstaff, Ariz., to make the picture, they decided the location was not suited to the production and so came to California. A chance acquaintance on a train suggested a sleepy suburb of Los Angeles, Hollywood, as a location which could be obtained cheaply. Hollywood's first picture was made in an old barn on Vine street, for which a rental of $200 was paid, Orbach stated.

WASHINGTON

PRODUCER

Some of our lobbyists used to think they were pretty good during the long Republican reign. They aren't so sure any more.

In awe and envy they are even thinking of taking lessons from certain of the New Dealers on how to extract pay dirt from the Federal Treasury.

Where they used to move furtively the new sequence seems to call for an open charge down Pennsylvania avenue.

Consider the case of Basil O'Connor. He and President Roosevelt once were law partners.

Shortly after inauguration a highly selective and numerous list received tastefully executed cards announcing that President Roosevelt had withdrawn from the firm of O'Connor and Roosevelt.

The list was selective because it addressed those who might have contact with official Washington. It was numerous for the same reason. But, the card added, the firm would continue to be known as O'Connor and Roosevelt.

This is the same Basil O'Connor who gave Richard B. Bevier the letter to Presidential Secretary Louis Howe which started all the rumpus about those forest army kits.

Howe was quite rightly exonerated by a senate committee which found the kits were worth what they cost—only they were too elaborate.

There's a grave suspicion, though, that Howe feels O'Connor almost put an innocent on the spot.

O'Connor rushed down to Washington while the kit investigation was on and took a hotel suite. He wasn't called to testify.

It is whispered he visited Boston around the time the kit contract was being let to see a sales manager for a razor concern. As Bevier's attorney he undoubtedly had a right to make such a call.

Since, O'Connor's footsteps around Washington seem to be as numerous as those of a troop brigade in the snow.

One marvellous lobbyist of the Republican variety tells how a friend advised him:

"If you want to keep in the swim, see O'Connor. What you want, he delivers. He doesn't handle everything but he produces when he takes a retainer."

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

WEAPON

The government has a special new club to use on dissenters from the Industrial Control program. It will probably be more effective, than either public hearings or the example of cooperating industries.

It consists of private advice to this effect: "We know you don't see things our way. But unless you cooperate—unless you put men back to work and raise wages so the effect is noticeable by the end of the year—what the next Congress will do to you is going to be just too bad."

This treatment has worked in two cases already. Business Tories are more afraid of Congress than of anything else in the world.

CODES

A showdown on codes is coming early in the game. Dry goods retailers sincerely believe that their code represents maximum concessions to the new deal. In fact they believe that their code represents maximum concessions to the new deal. In fact they are quite proud of its liberality. But the government is not giving them any medals.

The wage end of it would do although it doesn't call for cheers as a shining example. Ten to twelve dollars for women and twelve to eighteen dollars for men represents a real setup—so you can figure how far wages had dropped.

But the true hitch comes on labor hours. The 48-hour week is contrary to Industrial Control principles. The government was particularly anxious to get more people to work in the stores and now the stores have blocked the way. If this code gets by it will be much harder to enforce the shorter week in either industries.

What makes it tough is that

CONFERENCE

For once it looks as though Uncle Sam is holding a winning hand in an international poker party. And intends to play it.

This time everybody drew the same kind of chips. All players started with their backs even to the wall—except those who gave a handicap by denting it.

The London conference isn't just a case of battleships vs. blueprints. Those European lads seem to be finding that out.

Our delegation will continue to play 'em close and call all bluffs.

Meanwhile the conference will muddle along while America skips merrily around that long-promised corner.

This is the consensus of our home economists who were left to hold the fort.

None of the Washington pulse-takers look for much action from the World Economic meeting. Neither do they look for any sudden collapse.

Suffering Europe has too much at stake.

Rather, they feel that after a month or so of stalemates some small potatoes can be pulled from the fire and mashed into a good dish—at a later date.

England is almost forced to line up with the United States against any European combine. She is just two jumps from becoming a third-class power if all her cards aren't played just so.

It may be unkind, but aside from her governing people and those who deal constantly with her there are many who think England no longer is a first-class power. The men who could have held her in the lead died in the war.

France is in a plenty tough boat. An eyelash and some legerdemain are keeping her on the gold standard.

A move off the yellow metal means an almost inevitable use of the presiding government. That would be bad for peace.

The French deficit is mounting steadily. A forced increase in her wheat subsidy didn't help matters.

The industrialists have controlled all governments in the past. They probably are wondering if they can control whatever is the next one if the gold standard is booted from under.

President Roosevelt has had a finger on this situation by extremely fast remote control, even though vacationing.

He didn't send Prof. Moley over there with any super-instructions. He merely sent to our delegation about as follows:

"Hold tight to your original instructions. If currency is to be stabilized it must be a worldwide agreement, not one embracing only three powers. We'd rather retire and try to work out an all-American setup than be pulled into something temporary. Keep trying to get something general that can be developed later in separate conference if no general accord is in sight.

Incidentally, more may be heard later of the move to tie up the Americas into a neat economic bundle.

President Roosevelt is no party to Basil O'Connor's lobby activities. . . . He probably would be annoyed if he knew the old firm name was being so used.

O'Connor is only one of several who are demanding fat fees. . . . It all seems to be quite legal. . . .

the retailers cannot be treated as chisellers. They honestly feel they have done their best and will fight against further concessions with a clear conscience. The government must either accept their code or indulge in an argument which might damage the announced partnership of government and industry beyond repair.

There was small minority of liberal retailers who wanted to try shorter hours on a stagger system of employment. They were so badly outnumbered they soon quit on that plan and concentrated instead on a better wage level. Their influence kept the scale finally adopted from being lower than it was.

The betting here is that the government will make the best of an awkward situation by accepting the code and pointing out that conditions which require a 48-hour week in the retail business do not apply to manufacturers. It would no' have been so bad if some shorter-hour codes had been filed first. As it is, it paves the way for many plans that long hours are necessary to meet special conditions—which would upset re-employment plans before they got started.

The textile industry's 40-hour week is hardly what the doctor ordered either. But they will probably get by with it because of the double shift provision.

Insiders predict that resistance point where only the full reach to the shorter week will reach to the President's prestige can get the results the government wants.

Several industries have shifted their code plans since the retail trade proposal was published. They are thinking of ganging up on General Johnson to prove that the shorter week would ruin them.

STEEL

U. S. Steel owes its preferred stockholders more than eight million dollars in unpaid cumulated dividends. It may get back more than this from the railroads it owns as a result of the repeal of the recapture law. If this happens the stockholders will be in for a happy surprise.

SPECULATORS

Commodity speculators are raising Cain with acreage reduction plans. Wheat at a dollar and more makes it almost impossible to get results. Informed New Yorkers say the White House will have to step in to dampen speculative ardor or the far program will go on the rocks.

The speculative fraternity doesn't believe the administration will interfere with them at the risk of reversing boom psychology. They may get badly fooled.

CLEAVER'S HYSTERICAL ALMANAC

On July 7, 1747 JOHN PAUL JONES was born.

When America, in the Revolution, needed ships, Jones went to France and borrowed five little ships from the French King and started out after British shipping.

In one battle, offered the opportunity to surrender to a larger adversary, he spoke those immortal lines:—
"Surrender, hell! I haven't begun to fight!"
"Why, we used to have a 'washing machine' at home and I'm the boy that 'darned near made it work.' You can't lick a man like that." And the British counted.

CHAPTER XXIV

Tea was over, Tom and Statlander had come out promptly, Rosie had been sent to summon Marvin, still upstairs after Linda's unexpected glimpse of him, and Shaughnessy had appeared in bland good humor before she had time to dispatch anyone to notify him. The little ceremony, simple as it was, had, as Linda's nerves and enabled her, while listening to the talk of others, to formulate her own thoughts. Now, on the plea of a rest before dinner, she was in her own room and Tom had soon followed her upstairs for their first interview.

Linda permitted herself to relax in her arms for a moment, then resolutely assumed her briskest, most, business-like manner. "I've found out a good deal, Tom, but it won't take long to tell. First, have you heard from Dr. Boyle?"

"No, I telephoned the station after you came up and Tim said they had no word. He evidently doesn't think Boyle intends to hurry himself. In fact, I gather he believes just the opposite. At seven last night he would remain in the house until he did let us know. My guess is Boyle will wander in some time this evening. I can't say I anticipate the experience."

"The later he comes the better I'll be pleased. During dinner I'm going to ask the men to stay all

BEACHCHIEF IN WARNING ON FIRECRACKERS

SEAL BEACH, July 1.—According to announcement made today by Chief of Police James Zoeter, the shooting of fireworks of any description is prohibited except on the ocean front, and there only on the parts not posted to the contrary.

All the restricted area has been posted and those who disregard the order will be punished, Zoeter said. Since Seal Beach is one of the few of the cities in this territory which will permit the sale or shooting of fireworks, a large crowd is expected over the week end to celebrate the occasion in the traditional manner.

Numerous fireworks stands have been opened in the city and on the highway this week. Under the new ordinance adopted by the city, established business houses in the city must pay a license fee of 15 cents for each additional stand apart from their regular location. If the applicant for a license has not conducted a business in the city for the past six months, a license fee of $200 a day for the first day and $100 a day for each additional day will be charged.

ATWOOD, July 1.—Mrs. J. D. Duer entertained with a weller in observance of the birthday anniversary of her daughter, June, recently. Dancing was enjoyed later in the evening.

Well, after all, people sometimes explore other people's houses. He might have wandered into that empty room and then been afraid you'd caught him prying. But just the same—well, leave him now. DeVos was next?"

"No. Then I overheard Rosie talking to Mr. Shaughnessy."

Almost word for word she repeated the conversation, her troubled voice unconsciously reflecting the musical Irish intonation. "Tom smiled. Linda was naturally a clever mimic and doubly so now, with her anxiety to reproduce the situation accurately. But as he listened, all thought of any other suspect dropped from his mind."

"Linda—we must see that shirt! Or have you already? You say Rosie has it in her room?"

"Linda's face fell. 'It didn't occur to me to go up and look. I had time to. But you know I let the girls alone all I can and I rarely invade their rooms.'

"Can't you now? After they serve tea and clear it up they go upstairs to rest a bit and change their clothes for dinner."

He pondered that. "During dinner could you make some excuse?"

"I could—and I will if you say so. But I don't think it would be wise. This hot clear weather it would be dry by now. Her window gets the afternoon sun. She probably took it in when she went upstairs."

"Well—we can decide that later, but that's awfully important, Bink."

"If the stains were—blood—"

"What else would he be so anxious to get out?"

"I don't know. Liquor, perhaps."

"He doesn't consider that any disgrace! He'd just stuff the shirt in his bag. It would be done for after the dance last night, anyhow."

"You think it was that one?"

"What other?"

"The men dressed for dinner Thursday night too."

"But—blood!"

She nodded. Suddenly he comprehended.

"By jove, Binks—that's so! Binky—more likely, I'd say! That is, granting he did it—did both of them. He wouldn't get blood on the shirt and the cuff too, throw the old man over the parapet. But we don't know how the poor old was smashed so horribly. Blood—blood and white hairs, I'd say. Important to get rid of it only after Cousin Amos—oh, gosh, Binks, I wish you'd seen that shirt!"

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

Deep Water, by Bruce Mitchell, published by Little, Brown & Co. "Deep Water" is the autobiography of a sea captain who tells of his 18 years of arduous work, the adventures it entailed, and the experiences of a vessel at sea. His experiences include a year wandering and laboring in Australia where he encountered crocodiles, swam rivers, learned to handle a horse, after a fashion, in an attempt, and had to sleep on a stomach the night following a six weeks of isolation during a herd of sheep.

Voyages were lengthy affairs in those days of sailing vessels, for the carrying of freight at least, was scarce on these long voyages and food was now and then actually rotten. In the beginning, when the author was a boy with a healthy appetite, the food was an important item, for although his appetite was such that he could eat almost anything, the limitation of the food and the poor quality kept him hungry most of the time on several of the ships on which he sailed. He never missed an opportunity to "snitch" some food, and once stole practically under the snoring captain's nose to get at the sugar bin. He had previously tied his dunce around his ankles so he filled each leg with about ten pounds of brown sugar. One leg of this sugar he gave to the captain's boys who had been planning when he conceived the plan. The other he had to share with his watch to whom he told the story. Such was his boyish pride in his adventure that he had to boast of it a bit and of course he had to "divvy up" with all those to whom he told his experience so that in the end, for all his daring, he had only a half pound of sugar left for himself.

The boy presented in this story had courage, grit, was ambitious to learn, loved his family. It is a good, wholesome adventure story for boys and a readable book for anyone who responds to the thrill of adventure.

De Valera, by Dennis Gwynn, published by E. P. Dutton. In this book we see a fighter for political freedom progress into a social revolutionary. The author follows De Valera's long fight against England. The emergence from obscurity came with the uprising during Easter week, in 1916, when De Valera became a national hero. He is not gilded, however. We see him as at times obstinate, opinionated, vain, cantankerous but he has brought Ireland to the promised land of independence.

There has come a change in De Valera's aims, as Mr. Gwynn says De Valera and his fight. Today it is not so much a fight for freedom from British domination as an effort to lift the burden of the money power from the backs of the masses. De Valera, therefore, leads a fight not only for political independence but also for economic freedom.

De Valera is still the most potent influence in Ireland and the fact that he is a man to be reckoned with in British affairs makes the biography unusually vital.

The Provincial Lady in London, by E. M. Delafield, published by Harper & Brothers. "The Provincial Lady in London" is one of those books which restore self-esteem which has been shattered by humdrum routine of trifling annoyances which one is convinced would not happen if one had proper skill, or if they happened one would not notice them. In other words, "The Provincial Lady in London" is a comfortable and reassuring book because it is a very human one.

It purports to be a diary written by a country mouse sort of person who has just written a successful book when the diary opens. She is the mother of two children, Vicky and Robin, who figures in the diary as also her "servant problem," the governess, a holiday tutor for the children, her husband, and several friends.

Much of the amusing quality of the book is derived from the guileless style of the author. Quite frequently she takes advantage of people's exaggerated statements for a bit of fun, putting down the train of thought which the exaggeration suggests.

In the course of the series of entries in the diary she decided to send Vicky off to school, the boy Robin is already going to boarding school, and therefore dismiss Mademoiselle, the governess. There are several painful

Paramount's big new picture, "Jennie Gerhardt," starring Sylvia Sidney, with a renowned cast, will come to the Fox West Coast theater Tuesday, July 4, it was announced today by Lester J. Fountain, manager.

The cast in "When Ladies Meet" is one of the most attractive from a popularity standpoint any picture shown here this year has boasted. It includes Robert Montgomery, Myrna Loy, Alice Brady and Frank Morgan.

Sophisticated, well directed and with an appeal to all kinds of audiences, the picture is expected to be one of the most popular of the year.

Miss Sidney plays the role of a girl whose charm for men brings her more tragedy than happiness in the screen version of Theodore Dreiser's great novel. She hardly realized the effect she has on men, early in the plot she yields to her stricken family, but before they can be married, he is killed in an auto accident.

After the infant is born, she attempts to start life anew, falling in love with the brother of her employer. Things go well for years until he finds out about the child. His reaction is startling and its effect is tragic to Jennie.

The play, which is likened to "An American Tragedy," another Dreiser story, is deep, and its showing here will appeal particularly to Santa Ana audiences which like their story with much drama.

JAMES CAGNEY IN NEW FILM HERE FRIDAY

If a boy goes wrong, how much are the parents to blame?

This is answered in the new James Cagney picture, "The Mayor of Hell," which is scheduled for the Fox West Coast theater for next Friday and Saturday.

Cagney pictures have all scored and scored heavily. The new picture is no exception. It packs a terrific punch. It fairly blazes with drama and action.

The story is an unusual solution for the training of delinquent youths. It shows conditions which lead boys astray and the results. Yet, there is a romance, and an idea of what the boy unconsciously wanted to be. All in all, it is a picture that every mother and father in Santa Ana should see.

Madge Evans has the feminine lead in the production. Others in the cast include Frankie Daro, Allen Jenkins, Dorothy Peterson and Charles Wilson.

EILERS, DUNN STAR IN FILM AT WALKER'S

Following their rise to popularity as a starring team in such successes as "Bad Girl," "Over the Hill" and "Dance Team," James Dunn and Sally Eilers have been cast together again in "Sailor's Luck," the new Fox film opening an engagement at Walker's State theater Sunday.

The picture, directed by Raoul Walsh, tells the story of a sailor with the Atlantic fleet who becomes entangled in a love affair with a girl that's different. The two get along famously until Dunn, thinking she has been untrue to him, quarrels with her and sails away with the fleet. He later learns that it was all a mistake, and he returns to patch things up, only to learn that she is not so willing to come back.

Dunn's love for Sally Eilers carries him through every imaginable sort of excitement, through comedy scenes in a public swimming pool over to a gang fight on the street and a grand finale in a dance marathon, with the Navy as usual, winning the honors.

Much of the comedy is supplied by Sammy Cohen, dialect comedian, who is cast as Jimmy's pal "Barnacle Benny."

Harris, a millionaire playboy, takes out an insurance policy against marriage before sailing and when he falls for a girl on the boat, his playboy friend, Ruggles, does all he can to protect the company, failing of course in the end. There is much rare comedy and a great amount of beauty in the picture.

Final showing of the picture "Heroes For Sale," new Richard Barthelmess production, which is now showing at the Fox West Coast theater, will be made tonight.

Another typical Barthelmess show, the picture has everything for entertainment, romance, thrills, action. It is the story of a man who gave his all for his country, only to return and find all he loved taken away from him.

How he battles for his wife against terrific odds, the misery and yet the success he achieves, will be remembered here for a long time. Barthelmess was never better.

Loretta Loung plays the role of the wife. Others important in the cast include Aline McMahon and Gordon Westcott.

Set in the fashionable salons of metropolitan society, aboard a luxurious yacht and at a number of sparkling resorts, this picture portrays the romance between a finished jewel thief and the charming operator of an insurance company. The plot revolves around the plans of a woman to arrest a man and ends in an unexpected climax involving infatuation and love.

Tables seating 200 guests were placed in the church dining room. Hostesses were clad in costumes, representative of the colonial period, of the Forty-Niner period, of the suffragette era, and inflation era. At the officers' table, decorations were in black and silver, with miniature models of some of the buildings of the world's fair. These models were the work of Miss Mary Louise Wallace.

Following the dinner, Mrs. C. W. Brakeman, president of the Women's society, presided as toastmistress, first presenting a basket of flowers to Mr. and Mrs. John James. Mr. James has been president of the Men's club for the past year. Past presidents of the Women's society and of the Men's club were introduced. Mrs. E. A. Bell, president-elect of the Women's group, was introduced, and as no new president has been chosen as yet for the Men's club, a parody on "The Vacant Chair" was sung by Mrs. Albert Hill. Representing the "New Deal" the Rev. Harry Evan Owings, spoke briefly.

Mr. James was introduced into the "Big Brothers" organization, which consists of past presidents of the Men's Club, and husbands of presidents of the Women's society. Mrs. W. A. Atkinson acted as secretary and Mrs. Earl Morris as installing officer for this mock ceremony.

Program

At the conclusion of the ceremony, a program was enjoyed. The colonial group was represented by Miss Laura Joiner, who enjoys the title of Brother Joiner, conferred upon her by the Men's club in recognition of her services in leading their singing. She was attired in even clothes and silk hat, and sang a group of songs, "The Owl," "A Love Song," and "The Duckling." She was accompanied by Miss Mildred Marchant. The Forty-Niners were represented by a program including Mrs. George Lippincott in a dramatic reading, "Ring Out Wild Bells." This was followed by a melodrama "The Bold Bad Bandits or Love Will Win," presented by Mrs. Charles Harp, Mrs. Ed Farmer, and Messrs. Dick Martin, Harry Harlow, Harry Fink and Dr. W. F. Dean. A duet "Reuben and Rachel" was sung by Mrs. Lippincott and Mrs. F. W. Dean. They were accompanied by Mr. James on the harmonica.

Mrs. Hugh Wiley, representing the Suffragettes, gave a speech on "Women's Rights" and a poem, "Who Will Rock the Cradle?" Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Nalle sang a duet, "By Bendover's Stream" and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," accompanied by Miss Mary Nalle. Group singing of "Goodnight Gentlemen" concluded the affair.

Dinner committee included Mesdames L. R. Sterns, Fanny Reeves, William Rohrbacher, and their assistants.

ABSENCE

By HELEN WELSHIMER

I DO not think of you so very much.
And that is odd . . . I was so sure I'd miss
Your tall, clean strength, and gay eyes, laughter-filled,
Your arms close-holding, and your eager kiss.

I DO not want you as I thought I would.
The curtain dropped so softly on the play
That I forget unless I tell myself
That we are through—and you have gone away.

BUT now and then in some familiar place,
Or when someone says small words strangely dear
Because of you, I sense a sudden hurt,
And for a minute want you, want you near!

ANN MEREDITH'S

MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Dinner
Smothered chicken
Green corn spoon bread
Large serving of summer squash
1 tsp. butter for squash
Pear and cheese salad with mineral oil mayonnaise
Clear tea, no sugar
Calory total 525

For small portions of smothered chicken try the little broilers which weigh around a pound. Have them drawn and split down the back. Clean them thoroughly, wash, wipe, and dredge with flour. Fry to a golden brown, transfer to a baking pan, scatter a generous amount of minced parsley and green onions over the chicken and pour in enough milk to almost cover them.

A tiny bit of soda added to the milk will prevent curdling while the chickens are baking. Allow an hour for baking, oven low.

Spoon bread is really corn meal mush to which is added butter and eggs, the whites beaten stiff and folded in last. These egg whites make the bread rise. The green corn part comes in before the bread is baked. Cut the corn off the cob, enough to make a cupful, cook it in the hot milk before the cornmeal is added.

The spoon bread recipe was given last week, so I will not repeat it in detail.

Pear and Cheese Salad
This salad is my stand-by for unexpected company: keep a can of halved pears in the ice box and a package of grated cheese. Put a pear half on lettuce, strew with cheese and pour dressing over the whole thing. Buttermilk mayonnaise is particularly good with this salad.

TODAY'S RECIPE
Flank Steak
with
Spinach Stuffing
1 Large flank steak or
2 medium sized steaks
6 slices bacon
2 p. pounds spinach, cooked
1 cup soft crumbs
1-4 cup butter
Salt, pepper and a dash of nutmeg
One large flank steak will serve three, two medium sized ones will serve four.

Select one that has not been scored. Have the butcher slit a deep pocket in the steak, or do it yourself if you have a sharp knife. Dust with salt and pepper and fill with the spinach stuffing. Sew up securely, dredge with flour, salt and pepper. Lay in a roasting pan on a bed of minced green onion and parsley and drape the slices of bacon over the top. Bake 2 hours in a rather slow oven. As the steak bakes and the fat browns in the pan, add a cup of water mixed with a beef bouillon cube (for gravy later).

To make the stuffing: Prepare and cook the spinach, drain and chop.
For the soft crumbs with the butter, then mix with the chopped spinach, season and fill the steak pocket.

A large serving of this dish has a calory total of a little over 250.

How about that exclusive little rubber tire effect you've been carrying around for some months, and hating, I'll bet . . . would you like to get rid of it . . . easily . . . quickly?

Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a copy of my SAFE AND SANE REDUCING DIET will be mailed to you right away.

Au revoir until Monday.

ANN MEREDITH.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Jesus Rises From The Dead

Text: Josh. 1:1-9; 23:1, 2, 14
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 2.

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

A famous preacher once said, "God buries his workman, but the work goes on."

The figure of Moses looms so large upon the pages of history that one might have supposed that with his passing the greatness of the things that he achieved would have suffered. We should not, possibly, put Joshua, his successor, upon quite the same plane, for Moses in the story of the struggle for liberty was a man of almost superhuman proportions. But Joshua had the same essential ideas and characteristics, and he had the same source of help in the faith with which he relied upon the eternal God to help him.

All that we know concerning Joshua would have led us to think of him as the natural successor of Moses. He was among the 12 spies that Moses had sent to spy out the Promised Land and he was one of two who returned not only with a good report, but with an undaunted courage that urged immediate efforts to possess it.

The 12 spies were all agreed about the desirability of the land, but 10 saw its giants and its strongholds and regarded its conquest as hopeless; whereas Joshua and Caleb had a deep faith in other than material forces and believed that if the spirit of the Israelites were indomitable they could achieve the conquest of the land.

It should be remembered that in all these lessons we are living in a far-off age when national and racial and sectional rivalries were a matter of course. Even until comparatively recent times we have had the common recognition of the doctrine that "to the victors belong the spoils." If the men of one race or nation saw the country of another people as desirable they went ahead with plans for its possession.

Sometimes we imagine that we have changed much of this. We establish an International Court of Justice and a League of Nations, and we dream of a day when justice will rule between nations. The ideal is sound, and perhaps we are making more progress toward its realization than the cynic may admit. We are compelled, however, to recognize that a somewhat ruthless imperialism and expansionism still dominates in much of world affairs.

We must not, therefore, read these ancient stories from the standpoint of too high an ideal or with too critical a temper. We must read them rather in the light of the age from which they come, and the significant thing about them is that we can see in men like Moses and Joshua and Caleb, and in all the great figures, whom we shall be studying in the quarter's lessons, those who manifested a moral character and heroism far in advance of the times in which they lived.

That really is the measure of greatness of any man; not the distance that he may be removed from the highest ideal that we could set up, but the distance that he has progressed in advance of his own age.

Joshua was a real leader. He stands before us as a man of intense devotion to his people and of devotion to the cause of right progress. He is not a self-seeker, but a man who seeks true social and righteous goals. The lesson that introduces him bids him also farewell. In its brief compass we have the story of his life and his labor.

JOSEPH and his BRETHREN

JOSEPH was the favorite of the twelve sons of Jacob. And because he was the apple of his father's eye his brothers were consumed with jealousy. One day when the seventeen-year-old lad was helping his eleven brothers tend the sheep, dressed in the coat of many colors which his father had given him, the brothers rushed upon him, seized him, and cast him into a pit. His beloved coat they tore from him and dipped in goat's blood.

Just about this time a company of Ishmeelites came along with many camels bearing balm and spices to Egypt. The brothers said to one another: "Let us profit by our brother. And so they sold Joseph as a slave to the Ishme-elites for twenty pieces of silver.

That evening they showed the coat of many colors to Jacob their father, saying: "Can you tell us whether this, perchance, may be Joseph's coat?" When Jacob saw the coat all torn and bloody, he cried: "This is indeed my son's coat. An evil beast has killed him in the fields. And he mourned for many days.

When the camel train reached Egypt, the Ishmeelites sold Joseph to Potiphar, a Captain of the guard in the service of Pharaoh.

The story of Joseph and his Brethren is from the Old Testament—Genesis—Chapter XXXVII.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY M. COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

The Tinymites soon grew tired out of being bounced and tossed about by all the little serpent men. Said Duncy, "That was fun!"

"Now, let us toss you for a while," "All right," yelled the man, with a smile. "I guess we will be safe because we've shown you how it's done."

The little man crawled right into the net and yelled: "It's up to you! See how high you can toss me. This will be a dandy treat!"

"Be sure and catch me safe and sound. While I'm in the air I'll whirl around. It might give me an appetite. Then we'll find food to eat."

"Oh, gee! That sure sounds good to me. I am as hungry as you," said Duncy. "Don't you worry! You'll be tossed up good and high!"

"Just yell when you have had enough. We do not want to treat you rough. Be careful you don't bump into a cloud up in the sky."

It wasn't very long until all of the men had had the thrill of being tossed. Then Scouty said, "We're ready for a meal!"

A serpent man cried, "Never fear! I ran and got the food. It's here! Just eat all that you can, lads, and then see how good you feel!"

Fine sandwiches and frosted cake were in a basket. "We will make short work of that," cried Duncy. Then they all sat on the ground.

They ate till they could eat no more. "Now we will make our kind friends roar," said Coppy. "Let's get in the serpent skin and dance around."

My, what a funny sight to see. They found it easy as could be to put the skin upon their heads. "Now, follow me," said one.

The serpent will look real because we'll squirm just like a serpent does." The Tinymites then put on their dance and it was lots of fun.

RECOGNIZE RUSSIA AND OPEN A MARKET

It is interesting and instructive to note the attitude of the nations on the stabilization of U. S. currency. The dollar has been slipping, prices have been rising and business is returning. The other countries have become frightened. They propose to do nothing in the way of united economic action, looking toward recovery, until the price of the dollar is "pegged."

For the last several years, the United States has suffered immeasurably at the hands of foreign countries by the appreciation of the value of her currency, and the depreciation of theirs, so that international trade has found it profitable to trade in nearly any of the other countries, where their money was cheap, rather than in the United States, where the dollar was most expensive. Our national administration acted upon the theory that the purpose of government, instead of being the good of the people, was to keep the price of money high, in the interest of those who had it, under the guise of "sound" money.

Trade was being wrecked, business enterprises were going into bankruptcy, individuals were being ruined, and even suicides running into large figures, but the money was being kept "sound", and foreign nations were having the finest of "pickings". It was perfectly obvious. Even the millions of people who did not understand finance, could see what was being done, and this was promptly changed at the ushering in of the new administration. Money was recognized, not as an end in itself, but as a medium to an end, and this is what it is being used for now.

To be sure, it might get out of hand, but the President is clothed with power now to control it, and with the amount of gold now in America's vaults, the President would be enabled to "peg" the dollar the moment it has reached a sufficiently low point to be dangerous, or to be unjust to the creditor, in the light of the value of commodities four years ago.

The truth is, under present conditions, our financial and economic program is being outlined and carried on, in the interest of the people of America, rather than in the interest of those whose business it is to deal only in money.

There is one other business transaction that should be carried out, and that is, such action should be taken in respect to Russia that the trade of her 180 million people could be opened to the United States.

Ever since the war, and even before, the nations of Europe have carefully and skillfully erected trade barriers so that our produce can enter freely but few countries; in the meantime the people of Europe since the war have borrowed more money from the United States, either in the form of private or government loans, than all the money they have paid or all the balance of trade in our favor. They have on the average borrowed 1 million, let us say, and only spent with us about 1-2 million in return.

England has made trade arrangements with many countries as well as with their own colonies. In London, the Secretary of State, Mr. Hull, has been urging internationalism which makes our markets international but still leaves the other countries immune from our progressive foreign traders.

Our hope lies in the development of trade relations with more of less backward and undeveloped countries. Mexico offers us much more of a future than France; Russia offers us much more real profitable trade than France, England and Germany put together.

Russia has about 180 million people who need thousands of things that we make.

If England were the United States, with our resources, a steady armada of ships would be carrying goods by the thousands, aye millions, of tons from the harbors at Seattle, San Francisco, San Diego and Los Angeles to Russia and our traffic through the Panama Canal would be vastly increased and thousands upon thousands of our workers would be put to work!

Let us get our feet on the earth and in a material world deal with material things. We need the trade; Russia needs our goods; it is the opportunity of the century to put our industries back on their feet.

Let the President recognize Russia—Make a trade agreement.

Let's start the wheels a-going!

THE BEGINNINGS OF A GREAT REVOLUTION

"Great oaks from little acorns grow" is a familiar saying taught to many of us in childhood. From equally small beginnings great and far-reaching world movements arise. This is manifest in the story of the life of Lenin, the founder of Soviet Russia, as told by his wife, Mme. Krupskaya, who shared with the great revolutionist the early days of hardship and persecution when they were hunted by officials and spies through every country in Europe.

"In 1911," says Mme. Krupskaya, "the Bolshevik group in Paris was already a strong organization. In all it had a membership of forty." This was just six years before the Czar's government had ceased to exist, and the full control of 150,000,000 was taken over by the leader of that small group of forty in 1911. History knows nothing more wonderful and more miraculous than a change so tremendous and so significant.

But what made it possible was not so much the power of the forty, as the complete collapse of a continent by the ravages of one of the most destructive and devastating wars of history. It has been pointed out that revolutions are possible only when a government completely collapses. That was the condition of Russia in 1917. The Czar's government was little more than a shell. All it required was a corporal's guard of adventurous and resolute spirits to overthrow it and reorganize it. Lenin's puny forty did that, and the results, as we know, are expressed in one of the most daring and the most radical economic reconstructions known to history. The future of the world was potential in those forty unknown men and women who met in Paris in 1911, just as the moral and the spiritual revolution of the world was potential in the twelve humble peasant fishermen who met in an upper room in Jerusalem at the beginning of the Christian era.

This is a source of hope. But it is no less a source of danger. If a resolute forty or an inspired twelve can effect a great economic and spiritual movement, the same resolute number may move the clock of the centuries back a thousand years. The power of the few is no greater for good than it is for ill.

THE RADIO AND THE CLOCK AND WATCH INDUSTRY

And now it is being said that the radio is ruining the clock and watch industry. The frequent broadcasting of the correct time by radio stations makes timepieces less necessary. We have become so accustomed to hear the announcer saying, "It is now 30 seconds past 2:30 o'clock" and so on through the afternoon and evening, that it is easy to regulate our business and social engagements by means of the radio.

Of course, we are not going to do away with clocks and watches today or tomorrow. We cannot carry a radio around with us all the time. But we can see how the watch and clock repairer may lose some business because it is such an easy matter to set our clocks and watches by the radio time announcements.

Every new discovery works some hardship to established industries. The wise business man will see to it that his business is so conducted that when a new invention comes out threatening his particular industry, he will be in a position to liquidate without great loss because he has laid up a surplus providing for just such contingencies.

The inventive genius of the race will not be stopped to accommodate the people who refuse to follow the stream of progress.

ITALIAN FLEET ON ITS WAY

A fleet of twenty-five Italian planes is winging its way across mountain barrier and watery grave en route to the Chicago Century of Progress exposition. It is far and away the most spectacular enterprise which has been connected with the fair. The ambition of Italy and the ambitions of the promoters of the exposition have become linked together to the glorification of both. Italy is ambitious for world-wide acknowledgment of the nobility of her sons. It was that ambition which fostered the ill-fated Italia expedition which for a time placed a quietus on her spectacular endeavors.

The present exposition has been conceived on a scale of grandeur which overshadows the goal of the expedition, fine as that is. There is no more hazard for twenty-five planes than for one or two for if there is to be a misfortune it is as likely to befall one plane of an expedition of two as one of an expedition of twenty-five. We all hope that the whole fleet arrives safely at their destination. The personnel of the expedition will deserve the honor and publicity they will receive.

Incidentally the full success of the flight will have an important bearing on the traditional isolation of the United States, for those who did not long ago realize that it is not isolated in fact.

POPULATION INCREASES

According to the United States census, our country has increased in population since 1930 by nearly three million. It is figured there has been an increase, since the census, of 2,917,954.

California has passed the six million population mark, and has become the fifth state in the country. It is surpassed only by New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio. With anything like the development in California in the next seven years, that she has had in the past, it is very possible that our state will rank second in population in the next regular national census.

Gold in Philippines

The Oakland Tribune

Californians need not be told that gold mining has been stimulated by the world conditions of the past few years; that abandoned properties in this country and Canada have been reopened; prospects hurried to the mill stage; and the large workings explored to greater depths.

We have our new army of prospectors who, for the most part must look over the well combed hills for placer deposits. The old-time prospector has been invading new territory. He has found some new fields in tropical Africa. There is an appreciable mining boom in the Philippines.

The American Chamber of Commerce Journal of Manila says that "during the next ten years, if not the next five years, Luzon is to win her real fame as a gold field." Governor General Davis in his final report tells of gold to the value of $2,500,000 shipped out of the Baguio district in 1931 and adds:

"The principal mines have positive reserves blocked out that will keep them profitably engaged for many years. These mines employ a large number of people, and the region surrounding Baguio was the one bright spot on the economic horizon in the islands."

William Howard Taft, when he was Governor General of the Philippines, became convinced there was a gold future there and tried in vain to have Congress approve a mining code.

Prof. Moley Arrives In London

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

AGE ISN'T ALWAYS INCREMENT

I can't lie on the sofa.
For fear that it will crack;
It is, I'm told, extremely old,
And wobbly in the back.
The neighbors come to view it
And wobble in the back.
But furniture, I'm rather sure,
Is something one should use.

The highboys quakes and shudders
When people cross the floor;
It creaks when I am passing by
Or when I shut the door.
It does not serve the purpose
That honest highboys should.
And, as for me, I cannot see
That it is any good.

We've many precious pieces
Which we have bought at sales—
Blue China plates that are not mates
And old brass water pails.
Some people go in raptures
When these old things they see.
But none the less, I must confess,
They don't look good to me.

I have an automobile
That now is ten years old.
It growls and groans and grunts and moans;
Its faults are manifold.
It chokes and coughs and rattles,
It spatters gas and grease,
But I do not think I have got
An old museum piece.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

RUSSIANIZING OUR UNIVERSITIES

At last, after holding them up to ridicule again and again, I have come around the agreement with Hamilton Fish and the whole array of red-baiters that we are rapidly Russianizing universities.

But I completely disagree with them on what it is that is Russianizing our universities.

It is not that our professors are going communist, for they are not; by and large, there are ten conservatives to every radical in the faculties of our universities.

But, under the pressure of economic circumstances and the plea of Taxpayers' Alliances and like organizations, we are doing to our universities very much what revolutionary Russia did to hers.

"Russia deprived her professors—many of whom were among the really great scholars of Europe—of everything they needed," says President Coffman of the University of Minnesota.

"She exiled some of them.

"She reduced her support of the universities to a mere bagatelle.

"Salaries disappeared.

"Teaching became unattractive.

research impossible. "The fellowships and scholarships that should have been filled with the most talented young men were filled with the stupid and the ignorant."

This is the sort of thing that may well happen in the United States if we do not think carefully before we scuttle our universities in this period of depression.

President Coffman rightly argues that to bring the teaching staff of any level of education to the level of a mere subsistence wage is suicidal for the nation.

It means fewer books.

It means fewer magazines.

It means less science.

It means less progress.

It means a weakened professional interest.

It means the attraction of fewer and fewer outstanding personalities to the teaching profession.

This—and not the spread of radicalism—is the real Russianizing of our universities that is going on.

A GOOD PATTERN

A good pattern is half the battle. Another way of saying it is: If you know where you are going you will get there sooner. Children do not know where they are going. It would be too bad if they did. We have a notion as to where we would like them to go and of the road we would have them travel. But all that is closed to them. That is why a good pattern helps them so much.

If you have the sort of girl who seems to be heading just nowhere, who falls into the ways of her companions as softly and as easily as an old cat falls upon familiar shoulders, she needs a good pattern. Select some heroine for her. Don't do it as badly as I have stated. Go about it wisely and with discretion. Let the notion steal upon her unawares so that she thinks the idea is wholly her own.

The heroine she is to use as a pattern and guide must appeal to her. Study the girl and do your best to suggest the right sort of person for her copy. Sometimes the teacher is the ideal, sometimes a book heroine like The Old Fashioned Girl, Jo in Little Women; a saintly person like Therese appeals to some girls; a great leader like Frances Willard to others. Sometimes there is a relative that stands for all that is fine in the mind of a child. Search for the right one and keep putting her before the girl so that she follows her lead.

Do the same thing for the boy. It helps tremendously to have a hero at hand to stimulate lagging endeavors. "Theodore Roosevelt washed his face," I'm sure. "Imagine Napoleon having to stay in after school because he didn't do his homework." "Could you picture Dr. Grenfell forgetting to do his errands?" Not enough of this to sicken the youngster but just enough to make him thoughtful about his behavior.

A symbol helps a child to remember. That is why badges and pins and such things are dear to the hearts of children. A ring worn for truthfulness, a bracelet for courtesy, the cross of the order of the King's Daughters for service, have exerted great influence for good.

A good picture acts in the same way, stimulating and strengthening admirable purposes. A religious picture helps some children. A copy of some ideal creation, a picture of Sir Launfal, of Joan of Arc, a historical, legendary spirit, of Nurse Cavell, a modern heroine dying for the cause she served, whatever appeals to the particular child, will help.

Children, as I said in the beginning, do not know where they are going, nor how, nor why. They may never know why, but they can have a definite aim and they can follow a well laid plan of approach to the pleasant place of their dreams. Anything we can do to help them find that aim, that road, and to steady them in their effort to find and keep it, is worth our effort. We see too much of our own strength in children. We forget that they are starting as we started, not where we stand now.

Give them a good pattern. Set them a good example. Make the path of duty as straight and as pleasant and as easy as you can for it is strewn with painful experiences and set with snares and pitfalls that you may not remove. Only this little power is granted you. Give them a good pattern.
